SWEEPING (CLEANING)

Grease is flammable and if it catches fire, high temperatures are created in your intake duct - which can lead to serious fires. Therefore, by law, all commercial kitchens and all restaurants must have their waste ducts cleaned at regular intervals. This cleaning can, depending on how the system looks, take place in slightly different ways. Most often by the cleaner flushing ducts, fans and units with hot water and a degreasing agent - so that the flammable grease disappears. According to the Act (2003:778) on protection against accidents (LSO)

FIRE PROTECTION CONTROL

According to statutory regulations for restaurants and commercial kitchens - as well as comparable establishments - the exhaust air ducts must be checked from the areas where cooking or heating of food takes place. The inspection also examines any parts that have been fitted to the duct - such as fans, separators and dampers. Also roof covering and other associated building parts, such as joist penetrations, as well as roof safety devices are covered by the inspection duty. According to the Act (2003:778) on protection against accidents (LSO)

YOUR PROPERTY / RESTAURANT IS THE CLEANER'S WORKPLACE

The sweeper depends on your help to do his job. When you are notified that sweeping (cleaning) and a fire safety check will be carried out, it is good if you help with the following things before the sweeper arrives:
- If there is no fixed ladder or ascent through the wind, put a ladder in front. The property owner is responsible for ensuring that ascent and movement on the roof can take place in a safe manner (e.g. ladders clear of snow and ice). Therefore, check that the ladders on the roof are secure and that slip protection is mounted at the eaves next to the roof ladders, so that the ground ladders cannot slide sideways. In winter, it is good if the owner or usufructuary ensures that it is shoveled up to the ground steps.
- We also check and inform about fire extinguishers during the fire safety inspection visit.

ALSO CONSIDER THAT

- In case of move or change of ownership of property / Restaurant, please notify the Sotningskontoret of this.
- You are obliged according to the Accident Protection Act to ensure that the Chimney Sweep gets access to the restaurant/property.

FOR REBOOKING TIME:

Your appointment is scheduled after several restaurants in the same area are cleaned at the same time. In this way, we save both the environment and time. But we understand that sometimes the time is not right. If you want to rebook, it is good if it is done at least two days before the announced time. Call the office on 0225-13124 or contact us via our website or email. It is also possible to rebook in our booking portal. If you want to agree with the chimney sweep about another way to gain access to the property, it is fine to contact us via our contact channels.

Is the time not right? To rebook to another time, log in at <http://skraet.skorstensfejare.se>. Use the rebooking code on your swedish notification
