SWEEPING

Sweeping is an important part of the work to prevent fires in homes. Approximately one third of all fires in villas, semi-detached and terraced houses and holiday homes are fireplace-related. Sweeping operations are divided into two separate tasks, sweeping and fire protection control. When sweeping, flammable coatings are removed to reduce the risk of fire. According to the Act (2003:778) on protection against accidents (LSO)

FIRE PROTECTION CONTROL

The fire safety inspection aims to detect any errors and deficiencies in the facility. The inspection involves a test of the facility's function and that its properties mainly comply with the requirements that applied when it was put into use. Primarily, it is the property owner who is responsible for fire safety - both at the time of installation and during ongoing use. It is also the property owner's responsibility to maintain the facility for fire prevention purposes. This is important to keep in mind as the issues are not only about life and health, but also purely in terms of property. According to the Act (2003:778) on protection against accidents (LSO)

The inspection covers the facility as a whole. Particular attention is paid to the following:

- Soot formation and coatings
- Damage or changes to the technical design
- Temperature conditions
- Pressure conditions and tightness
- Operation and maintenance
- Check that the home is equipped with working fire alarms and has access to fire extinguishing equipment.

YOUR HOME IS THE CLEANER'S WORKPLACE

The sweeper depends on your help to do his job. When you receive a notification that sweeping and a fire safety check will be carried out, it is good if you help with the following things before the sweeper arrives:
- Set up a ladder: The property owner is responsible for ensuring that climbing and movement on the roof can take place in a safe manner (among other things ladders clear of snow and ice). Therefore, check that the ladders on the roof are secure and that slip protection is mounted at the eaves next to the roof ladders, so that the ground ladders cannot slide sideways. In winter it is good if it is shoveled up to the ground level.

- Move away carpets and furniture and cover fragile surfaces and floors up to and near the fireplace. Make sure there is plenty of space around the thing to be swept. Remove fragile items around the fireplace.
- Take out a non-flammable container with a lid, to put the soot in.
- During a fire safety inspection, the entire flue is checked, both outside and inside. This means that roof and possibly ventilation must be available at the time of inspection as well as all other spaces through which the chimney passes

ALSO CONSIDER THAT

- It is good if wood- and pellet-fired heating boilers are switched off and cooled down so that sweeping can be carried out. This of course also applies to other fireplaces such as wood stoves, tiled stoves, wood stoves, etc.
- Notify as soon as possible of a changed fuel type or equivalent measure that affects the sooting deadline. This also applies if you stop firing or before you start firing again.
- In case of move or change of ownership of property, please notify the Chimney sweep office of this.
- You are obliged according to the Accident Protection Act to ensure that the Chimney Sweeper gets access to the property.

FOR REBOOKING TIME:

Your time is scheduled after several houses in the same area are swept at the same time. In this way, we save both the environment and time. But we understand that sometimes the time is not right. If you want to rebook, it is good if it is done at least two days before the announced time. Call the office on 0225-13124 or contact us via our website or email. It is also possible to rebook in our booking portal. If you want to agree with Sotaren about another way to gain access to the property, it is fine to contact us via our contact channels.

Is the time not right? To rebook to another time, log in at <http://skraet.skorstensfejare.se>. Use the rebooking code on your swedish notification
